An unexpected passionate connection across diplomatic lines.

Norah Slattery, an expert on alien technologies, came to planet Sarma to examine an ancient artifact that could prove to be the missing connection between humans and Sarmians, but ends up making an interstellar connection of a much more personal type—with her host, the attentive and intelligent Sarmian Lord Vashar.

Vashar is passionate about the newly discovered artifact, and dedicated to using it to unite the galaxy—particularly Sarma and its sister planet, Earth. He did not expect to find his guest, the big and beautiful human engineering expert Norah Slattery, to be equally as fascinating.

Among the gathering of countless races to ask questions of galactic importance, the two find themselves more occupied with thoughts of one another. Is the line of diplomacy impassable for them, or could the unveiling of this artifact create a galactic society where they will be able to enter one another's lives—and beds?
