Developing a Theology of Planning Tony Morgan

As you've probably heard before, "Hope is not a strategy." In fact, it's a terrible approach to grow, develop and multiply what God has entrusted to us as leaders. That's why developing a theology of planning is critical to our next steps as leaders...especially in the church.

In this eBook, among other learnings you'll discover:

- > Why leaders resist planning
- > What happens when you do ministry without a plan
- > Why planning is biblical
- > The characteristics of good planning
- > How good planning benefits your leadership

Like previous eBooks written by Tony Morgan, this resource can be read in about 30 minutes, but it's designed to promote conversation and next steps. In other words, consider reading and talking about the content and the discussion questions with your team.

Ministry requires stewardship. We have to be wise stewards of the mission God has called us to engage. That's why healthy churches embrace healthy planning. We must plan before we build.
